

“Stories you won’t find anywhere else”

The Daily Standard

Sunday, November 20, 2011

Police Begin Campaign to Run Down Jaywalkers

Apparently the only way the police can stop or prevent people from jaywalking on the streets is to run them over with their cars. The police grew tired of citizens ignoring the fact that jaywalking is illegal, so they decided to take matters into their own hands. They began a campaign a few months ago to stop people from ever jaywalking again.

According to policeman Ed Johnson, he stated, “We were fed up with people jaywalking all the time, we wanted them to be safe so they wouldn’t get hurt. We only did what had to be done for the safety of our community. We’re not hitting them with the car hard enough to kill them, just enough to knock them down or break a bone.” “The campaign has been successful so far, there have been less reports of sighted jaywalking around the community” says another policeman.

An anonymous source disagreed with the campaign the police department began running. “It’s not right, this campaign is nothing but a cover up from something the police are hiding. Everyone jaywalks, they can’t stop people from crossing the street. By injuring the citizens the police are going to get in some deep trouble.” says the anonymous source.

Some of the individuals of the community want to run a campaign against the police department’s campaign. The new campaign the people of the community want to run would be to put a stop to the “Run Down Jaywalkers” campaign. The injuries of the jaywalker victims have complained about the lack of safety the police have provided. The victims claim the police campaign wasn’t safe at all, and the only reason people stopped jaywalking was because they’re afraid of getting hit by a car. “It is a nuisance to find a crosswalk just to cross the street” exclaimed most citizens. The police admitted it wasn’t a good system to put a stop to jaywalking.

The police are in pursuit as they catch someone illegally jaywalking across the street.

The police department and people of the community have agreed to make a compromise. As long as everyone is careful when they cross a street without using a crosswalk they are allowed to jaywalk. If someone is injured while jaywalking, the police cannot be blamed for the injury of the individual.

If you have been injured in an accident please call Dellino and Farnes injury attorney at 1-800-455-2020